

The hero section right now is a bit broken. The 3d animation that's supposed to be there on the right currently looks like a blob.

The elements on the left also seem a bit low as you're seeing the hero section for the first time without scrolling. We can take this slightly higher.

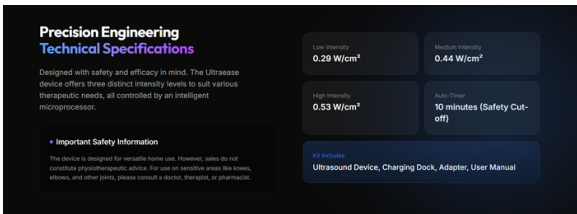

The buttons have shabby shadow on hover which doesn't look nice - we can instead give it a white outline on hover with a little smooth lift up.

The blob on the right needs to be fixed.

In this part the layout is a bit basic, and the formatting of the text is a bit weird where only one word is on the next line. This is a very amateur design mistake. Please think like a world class designer - the details are crucial.

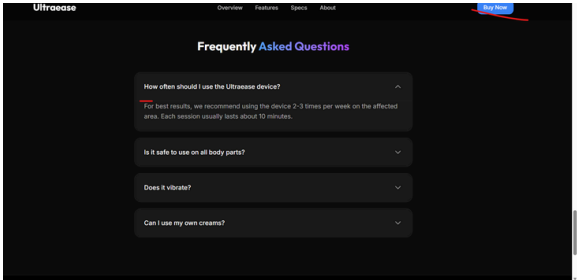

As you hover over the boxes, the colour changes slightly but the text becomes hard to read because on hover an almost translucent layer comes on top of the white text so the hover actually ends up having an opposite effect. We need to polish this up.

This is a bit boring to look at and also to understand. The elements aren't that interactive and i can't really make sense of it. Please think like an expert content strategist as well - how do we convince the user to purchase this product - aand how do we explain the nuances to them simply. Please redo sections if you need to for this or create new ones if you need to. Right now it feels like I don't know whats going on and what this product is about.

I want it to be so that even somebody who doesn't know what this is happens to stumble upon the website, they should be sold after they've gone through it and should make the purchase there are so many more ways of explaining its value and we really need to lean on that and make this website more elaborate and more interactive.

The design is very rudimentary right now. The faq text formaatting looks like its done by an amateur. I don't like these fonts either. Use poppins for headings and inter for body.

Right now this feels like a 300$ website, not a $15000 website .

The animations and interactions - they're very basic as well - please add the polish that makes the output exceptional - the details, the added touch - the thorough attention to detail.
